House Proposes Sparing Guards From Defense Budget Cuts

The National Guard would receive full funding in 1992 as part of the new Defense Department appropriations bill passed by the U.S. House of Representatives.

Congressman Dave Camp voted in favor of the $272 billion defense bill to provide full Guard funding while reducing total defense spending by $12 billion from last year.

The Army had proposed reducing National Guard troops by 136,000 nationally as part of a plan to reduce the overall troop strength by 30 percent over a five-year period. Those cuts would result in the closing of 22 National Guard armories in Michigan and the loss of 5,000 Guard-related jobs.

The House in May had voted for a defense authorization bill that would hold Guard troop cuts to 22,000. But the defense appropriations bill adopted last Friday would spare the Guard from any reductions.

"By passing this legislation, the House of Representatives has taken a big step toward recognizing the need to keep the National Guard as part of our defense system," said Congressman Dave Camp. "People understand the Guard was important to our national defense during the Persian Gulf War and continues to play a key role in our communities."

In Mid-Michigan, armories in Big Rapids, Cadillac, Kalkaska, and Alma were targeted by the Army to be closed down. In addition, Guard operations would be reduced in Owosso and Grayling.

"We have to keep the pressure on to protect our Guard units," Camp said, noting that the Senate and House still have to approve a final defense spending bill in the fall.

"I am pleased that the committee and the entire House realizes the importance of the National Guard," Camp said. "By saving the Guard, we are supporting a cost-efficient way to provide national defense to our nation."

2 Mio Residents Drown

Lyle Dean Wagler, 25, and David Allen Jones, 14, both of Mio, drowned on Saturday, June 15, in a boating accident on the Big Creek Impoundment in Lovells Township. Their bodies were recovered around noon on Sunday in about 10 feet of water approximately 40 yards off shore.

The cause of the accident is still under investigation.

Local Man Found Dead

Guy Ashton, 43, of Grayling, was found dead on Thursday, June 13, in an apartment at 500 Michigan Avenue.

Ashton had been sharing the apartment with Al Leng, Jr., who was away when he died, attending the funeral of another friend. Leng returned home on Thursday and told police he became suspicious when Ashton did not respond to his calls. He said he did not want to enter Ashton's room alone so he called a friend to help him investigate. They found him dead and notified the police.

Autopsy results are not back, but according to Chief of Police Peter Stephan, Ashton appears to have died of natural causes. He said Ashton had been dead for several days before he was found.

Crawford County Sheriff deputies received the call at 9:56 Saturday morning. Ten divers searched for the victims in the murky waters on Saturday until thunderstorms forced the divers out of the water at about 5 p.m. Diving resumed on Sunday with 15 divers from the Sheriff and Grayling City Police departments.

Local police were assisted by the Roscommon, Otsego, Oscoda, and Kalkaska Sheriff departments, Mills Township and Lewiston fire departments, American Red Cross, and Michigan State Police from Gaylord and Manistee. The Manistee post sent a dog especially trained in locating drowning victims.

Benefit Hot Dog Roast To Help Pease Family

The Crawford County Deputy Sheriff's Association is sponsoring a hot dog roast in the City Park on June 26, from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. All proceeds will go to the Pease family who have a 20 month old child diagnosed with cancer of the heart. This fund-raiser will help the family with medical and other expenses.

Largest Training Exercise Of Year Underway At Camp Grayling

The Michigan Army National Guard began its largest exercise of the year last Saturday as more than 9,000 troops rolled into Camp Grayling.

Major Michigan units training at Camp Grayling include: the 46th Brigade; the 46th Engineer Group; the 177th Military Police Brigade; and the 72nd Support Brigade.

"Operation Eagle Crest '91," involves nearly 90 percent of the Michigan Army Guard's force. However, because of Operation Desert Storm, fewer soldiers and aircraft will participate in this year's exercise than last year's.

"The 1,700 Michigan Guard soldiers who served during the Gulf War are excused from 1991 annual training," said Brig. Gen. Elon M. Pearson, the citizen-soldier who commands the Michigan Army National Guard.

"Since Desert Storm, the Army has cut flight time so they can restock their spare aircraft parts inventories, so there are going to be fewer helicopters in the air."

Military traffic will be heaviest on Grayling-area roads on the mornings of June 24 and 29. "On June 24, troops come in from the field, and on the 29th they leave Camp Grayling for home," Pearson said. He added that military police will work with the local police and sheriff to manage convoy schedules and traffic flow.

When residents do see military vehicles, they may notice that many wear desert tan paint. Pearson said these are new vehicles, painted during Desert Storm and recently delivered to the Guard. They soon will be repainted in green and brown camouflage.

On Camp Grayling's gunnery ranges, artillery and tank firing will take place now through Sunday. Pearson said firing will stop three hours after sunset.

Grayling-area residents with questions about Guard operations can call the Camp Grayling Public Affairs Office at 348-3708, or the Public Information Hotline at 1-800-628-5820.

Road Commission Hires Firm To Develop Site Clean-Up Plan

By Irene Pettyjohn

Soil and groundwater contamination found on the old Crawford County Road Commission property on the corner of the I-75 Business Loop and Huron Street is holding up its sale to Burger King.

King Ventures, of Southfield, requested a 45-day extension of their purchase agreement with the Crawford County Road Commission. The old purchase agreement expired May 27. The additional time is needed to compile and analyze data from test monitor wells and soil samples taken from the area.

The road commission has hired Environmental Solutions, Inc. (ESI) from Traverse City to develop a remedial action plan for the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) and a pre-aquisition site assessment for King Ventures. Road commission engineer/manager Richard Young said these plans are still being reviewed by the DNR.

Steve Takacs, Geologist with Environmental Response Division, in Roscommon, said that overall, the road commission's remediation plan looks good. He said there are some minor details that need to be negotiated and the DNR has asked for some additional information, but that he did not feel there will be any problems coming to an agreement on a clean-up and monitoring plan.

Road Commissioner Ken Chapp said the commission has already paid approximately $78,000 to initiate clean-up procedures. Some of this money will be reimbursed to the county by MUSTFA (Michigan Underground Storage Tank Financial Assurance Act) funds. MUSTFA will pay up to $1,000,000 per site for contamination caused by underground fuel storage tanks. To qualify, the road commission must pay the first $10,000. These funds will reimburse for consultant fees, monitoring wells, digging and disposal of contaminated soil, and other costs incurred during the clean-up from the underground storage tanks. They will not pay for expenses like new tanks, re-surfacing or paving, or landscaping.

Groundwater contamination was found about a year ago when the commission removed several underground storage tanks. Young said when the tanks were removed they discovered an oily sheen floating on the surface of the groundwater. He said subsequent testing has not revealed any contamination.

Takacs speculated that the relatively low levels of contamination appear to be restricted to the road commission property. He said this could indicate a low volume of spillage or a fairly recent contamination. Leakage may have occurred around the pump island.

Approximately 220 cubic yards of contaminated soil was removed from the site and taken to Cedar Ridge Landfill in Charlevoix County. Normal cost for removal and disposal of contaminated soil is $50 per cubic yard.

In addition to benzene, toluene, ethylbenzene, and xylene (chemicals found in gasoline) contamination, Young said elevated levels of lead have also been found in soil samples.

Lead is a naturally occurring element in soil, but can also be caused by spillages and can even come from auto emissions.

"With as much traffic as uses the business loop and the number of years that cars used leaded gasoline it isn't surprising to me that elevated lead levels are present in the surrounding soil samples," said Young.

He said ESI took 41 soil samples from the old road commission site and 10 samples from properties surrounding the property in mid-April or early May. These samples reveal background concentrations of lead found in four of the off-site locations ranged from 26.97 to 1400 parts per billion (ppb). On-site samples ranged from 4 to 618 ppb. The report stated that "sandy topsoil and the sand fill below the concrete and asphalt exhibited 24.96 ppb total lead, predominantly due to the quartz-rich nature of the soil

Township Recycling Bins Removed

By Irene Pettyjohn

The Grayling Township recycling bins were removed from the North Down River Road transfer station on Tuesday, June 11.

Township officials decided to discontinue their recycling effort following repeated abuses by township residents. Garbage, unsightly refuse and improperly disposed of recyclable material was left lying on the ground near the bins.

"Only two people have questioned the board's decision to have the bins taken away," said Grayling Township Supervisor Arnold Stancil. He said one lady came to his office and asked why the landfill began charging the township to empty the bins when it turns around and sells the recyclable materials and a man, who attended the last township board meeting on June 11 regarding another matter, asked whether it would cost the township more to discontinue the recycling effort because it would increase the amount of refuse deposited in the compactor.

"I told the gentleman that we didn't see any significant decreases in the amount of compacted trash collected after the recycling bins were installed," said Stancil. He said the township will continue to graph the expenses and revenues from the transfer station as it has done for several years to monitor any changes.

"The only increase so far is the $80 it cost us to pull out the bins," he said. Grayling Township residents who have organized a recycling system and want to recycle but do not have curbside pick-up service will have to take their recyclables to the recycling container at the K-mart parking lot on the 1st or at Glen's Market on the 15th of each month.

"We haven't had any problems at either I-75 Business Loop locations," said Bob McLachlan, Jr. of Milltown Refuse. "However, if abuses begin, like tires, building materials and garbage and other non-recyclable materials being left, these two sites could close, too."

Grayling Soldier Protecting Kurds In Iraq

By Cecil B. Newberry

DAHUK, Iraq—Nightfall brings an eerie silence to the mountains. The winds become a gentle breeze and the hills seem to drift into a peaceful sleep. The only sounds are an occasional child's cry as his hunger pangs disturb his sleep. Men whisper encouragement to their families, but their words fall on deaf ears, as fear of death dominates everyone's thoughts.

In the valley below, a shadow stretches out across a field. Nearly invisible and quiet as a cat, Army Pvt. 2 Kenneth M. Elliott moves forward, eyes darting left and right. The cool night air makes him more aware of the beads of sweat on his forehead. He concentrates on remaining quiet and concealed, blocking the pictures of death from his mind.

Elliott, 20, is a heavy construction equipment repairman with the 94th Engineer Battalion, Darmstadt, Germany. His unit is responsible for pushing back the Iraqi army so the Kurds can come out of the mountains to relocation camps where they're fed and given medical attention. They will remain in the camps until the region can be stabilized and United Nations peace-keeping forces can ensure their safe return home.

Elliott is the son of Rebecca S. Lee, and the son-in-law of John A. and MaryAnn Maule, all of Grayling. As a soldier, Elliott is at the front lines, often just a few meters from the Iraqi army.

"I'm responsible for the maintenance of vehicles. I have to keep them running so the operation won't stop or be delayed. I also help maintain security for the area," said the 1989 Grayling High School graduate.

The Kurdish relief effort, called "Operation Provide Comfort" is giving these young soldiers a chance to help others and to use the skills they have developed in the Army.

"I feel a sense of pride knowing I helped out with this relief effort. The Kurdish people were obviously in need of help," said Elliott. "They work with us and they work hard, doing all they can to let us know our presence is appreciated. This is a humanitarian effort and we're all human."

The effort is a vast operation, involving combat situations for soldiers, the housing and feeding of thousands of Kurds, and medical attention for the sick and wounded. For many soldiers, it is something they will never forget.

"The heat is searing and hot unlike the weather back home in Michigan. The poverty and the dirt of the inner-city was like none I've ever seen. The Kurds were friendly and waved to us as we passed by. They like to watch us work and they help out," he said.

"The people try to sell us souvenirs at a high price, but we talk them into a reasonable one. The Kurds definitely understand the value of the American dollar."

Let's Talk About It

By Joe Murphy

The troops returning from the Persian Gulf received a well deserved Welcome Home from a grateful nation. They must have felt pride to see all the yellow ribbons and flags flying in their honor. They deserved the honors and cheers that greeted them. Our nation was the most united I have seen it since World War 2. The wars in Korea and Viet Nam were what could be called unpopular wars with the general public. To our ever lasting shame we did not treat our returning veterans of those wars with the honors and respect that they so well deserved. Many are hurt and bitter over the treatment they received upon their return. Did we the general public let the protestors and draft dodgers taint our minds in regard to those service people that our government ordered to those countries? They fought the war our politicians ordered them to fight the same as our military has done throughout our history. I would have to say that because there was no threat of draft in this war kept the college campuses cool this time and our country was again able to conduct a so called popular war. The media was not working to discredit every action that took place there as they did in Viet Nam. The veterans of both of those wars still rankle over the way they were treated upon their return. I have heard of some of them being spit on and called baby killers by their fellow citizens. The media was always happy to cover a protest but did not give equal time to cover any support groups. The senate hearings chaired by Senator Fullbright received top coverage on

T.V. for months and allowed any dingbat to rant and rave as long as he reflected their views.

The democrats who were in power at the time those wars were started, they opposed them as soon as republicans took over. Harry Truman's police action in Korea as far as I know was never an officially declared war, though those who fought and died there could see no difference; you were just as dead regardless.

Lyndon Johnson was just going to send advisors to Viet Nam to assist them in defending against aggression. I don't recall that ever being a declared war either. The long list of names of the victims of that action on the Wall of the Viet Nam Memorial tells the cost.

Regardless of the political wisdom of our leaders in getting us in those wars, the service people who were sent there by our government deserve every bit as much honor and respect we give to any of our veterans. Let's pay a long overdue debt by giving them the respect and honors their return to us. A SALUTE AND A THANK YOU TO VIET NAM AND KOREAN WAR VETERANS.

Reader Feels Jobs Are Not Available Here Because Of Prison Work Force

I would like to express my appreciation to commissioners Dennis Long and Joseph Callewaert for the vigilance and community service they perform in their pursuit of questioning the Department of Corrections concept of work-pass and work-crews.

I attended the commissioners' meeting mentioned in the 5/23/91 Avalanche that questioned the work-pass and work-crew program sponsored by the Department of Corrections.

Both Long and Callewaert asked questions that needed to be asked. They weren't "blown away" by the smoke and mirrors and disinformation presented to them.

At this meeting, Mr. Jack Sieloff stated how he was "laid off" but yet ten Camp Lehman inmates continued to work at the Crawford/Otsego Landfill Recycling Center for two more months.

The landfill director told D.O.C. that "Sieloff would have been laid off anyway because the work was seasonal."

My question is, why wasn't Mr. Sieloff allowed to continue to work and cut back on the amount of inmates working? Also, why didn't D.O.C. immediately pull out their work crews due to (at the very least) a conflict of interest? Or at least pull out the crew(s) to substantiate their integrity?

It is obvious that it is simple to doctor, calculate, and shuffle budgets and apportioned money to take advantage of an injected workforce in Crawford and surrounding counties.

It is worthy to note at this time that only a miniscule amount of the money paid to work-crews and work-pass is spent locally.

Also, since when is the Targeted Jobs Tax Credit (TJTC) a revolving door windfall for employers? Maybe the TJTC has changed its standards since I was an employment counselor.

The TJTC program as I remember it was 1. intended to lead to full-time employment while, 2. providing a "break" in the form of a tax write-off for Training Expenses for potential employers.

Again I wonder if TJTC has changed its standards, or, have certain people found a way to circumvent a good program? Like keeping wages so ridiculous and out of step with the times (1990s) that no one wants the job. Thus opening the door for work-pass.

To say the least this sounds rude to the state of Michigan.

I remember a Title VI program that was intended to help employers. C.E.T.A. (Comprehensive Employment Training Act of 1974) now JTPA, had a variety of excellent programs to help people gain employment and training.

C.E.T.A. had to drop the Title VI program because employers took advantage of the program. C.E.T.A. would put clients at a worksite. The goal was full-time employment. Or at the very least, seasonal employment.

Some of the Title VI clients would work their hearts out to learn their new jobs. Some of them loved their jobs. They were happy to have a future.

So what happened? Employers would keep the C.E.T.A. funded clients until weeks, or in some cases, only days remained on the training program. All of a sudden the employer wanted to dismiss the employee. The employer would give an excuse and someone's dreams would be shattered.

And the employer(s) would ask for another funded worker. And another. And another.

Finally due to abuse Title VI was scrapped.

Title VI, like TJTC was/were for people that were/are disadvantaged in some way. Also designed to help employees initiate and enlarge their employee base.

Now, when I see in the Avalanche that the D.O.C. says employers are told they "must attempt to fill positions from the local work force before they will fill it with an inmate"; and when I see that D.O.C. states, "What we'll do is make employers advertise in the newspaper or radio and he'll have to justify to us that he can't fill it from the private sector;" when I see this I cringe.

For three reasons. 1. I remember Title VI, 2. I realize that D.O.C. work-pass and work-crew personnel are paid to find work slots for inmates and must do so to justify their salary and position, and 3. Grand Traverse Resort.

You remember Grand Traverse Resort? They advertise in early February for summer help. Then they cry in June and July that they can't find any help. So they can import a work force from thousands of miles away (Jamaica).

For one (and others) feel there are jobs not available to residents of Crawford County due to the inmate work force. Instead of new job openings in the county it is easier to hire inmate labor. Instead of seasonal or full-time employment openings we see these positions that could open, never happening.

Again, thanks to Mr. Long and Mr. Callewaert for their efforts regarding work-pass and work-crews.

Reader Says Denying Wedding Is Not Fair

I wanted to get married to one of the inmates in the county jail but because he's going back to prison and not doing less than a year here in the county we were turned down, by the jail administrator, the sheriff, and the judge hearing his case. We had everything lined up, the blood test, waiver, the minister, and the license, and we knew we had to do it in the jail, but we were still turned down. I think it's not fair and I don't see what's the big deal. I'm just writing this to forewarn others in the same boat that they're facing a losing battle if they try. Unless you have money to get a lawyer to fight for your rights.

Moscow on the Potomac

IT LOOKED LIKE Moscow on the Potomac as the United States officially welcomed home veterans of the Persian Gulf war.

The huge parade and celebration in Washington included helicopter gunships, tanks, warplanes, missiles, 11 military bands, and 9,000 soldiers. It was "the largest display of military hardware in Washington's history," The Detroit Free Press reported.

Obviously this was no peace parade. This was a military observance, just like the May Day shows of armed might the communist world used to honor the founders of its political system and to show off its military muscle.

The whole celebration was expected to cost some $10 to $12 million, according to most reports — including up to $7 million in tax dollars from the Pentagon's budget.

WHAT A WAY for the country to express its appreciation for the efforts of those American service personnel who were part of our Persian Gulf efforts.

It had to make you fill your breast with pride.... or shake your head in wonder.

Was our national adventure in the Middle East worth this price? And what is the real price?

Greenpeace, a national environmental group, recently issued a report claiming that the actual toll in human life of the Gulf war may be at 226,000 or more.

The Greenpeace report cited these death figures:

—100,000 to 120,000 Iraqi troops killed.

—74,000 to 101,000 Iraqi civilians died.

—2,000 to 5,000 Kuwaitis died during Iraqi occupation.

—343 allied troops died, including 266 Americans.

GREENPEACE CLAIMS about half the Iraqi troops were killed during the 100-hour ground war. And more sobering yet is the claim that nine out of ten civilian deaths occurred after the cease-fire, and that refugees may be dying at the rate of 2,000 to 3,000 each day.

Greenpeace claimed its estimates are based on interviews with military and government leaders, military analysts and news accounts. Obviously they cannot be verified precisely; but even if the estimates are exaggerated, they still are staggering.

Perhaps there is a longer-range cost which cannot be identified yet. A recent letter to the editor printed in The Detroit Free Press expressed fears of many.

"The Persian Gulf War brought more death, destruction of infrastructure, and lingering suffering and homelessness than did the evil it sought to correct," wrote Rev. Lawrence M. Ventline of Port Austin. "An ecosystem was devastated, and the total planet's life system will be affected."

These concerns may well be overstated, but there also may well be at least a shred of legitimacy in such fears.

WAS IT ALL WORTH IT? Many

Americans still aren't sure.

Michigan Pfc. Aaron Howard of Battle Creek was killed in the desert. His mother, Bonnie Howard, planned to be in Washington for the official parade and salute to our Persian Gulf efforts. But she didn't sound at all sure that things were right.

An Associated Press news report said Ms. Howard was "still wrestling with her emotions about the war," and the death of her son.

"I wonder sometimes if it was for a just cause," she said. "I'm glad that Aaron can't see all these Kurdish refugees."

Was it worth it? Kuwait is restored, after a fashion; at least, the ruling family is back in control.

But Saddam Hussein is still in charge in Iraq, where things are as uncertain as ever. And Secretary of State James Baker, despite consistent efforts, can't seem to get any two Middle East politicians pulling in the same direction.

Back in March, when the fighting stopped, I wrote in this same column: "Was it all worth it? We must believe it was...."

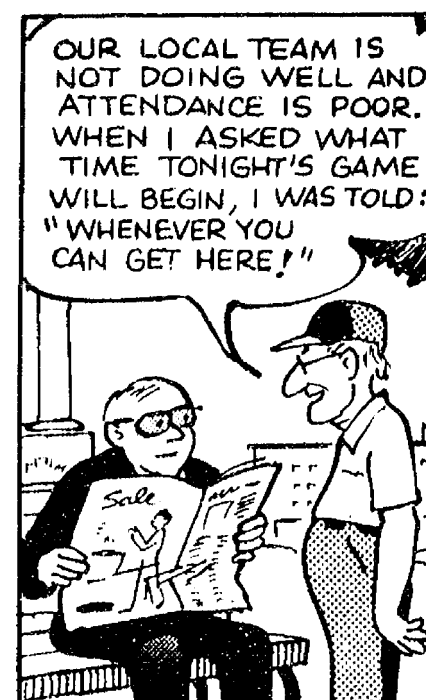

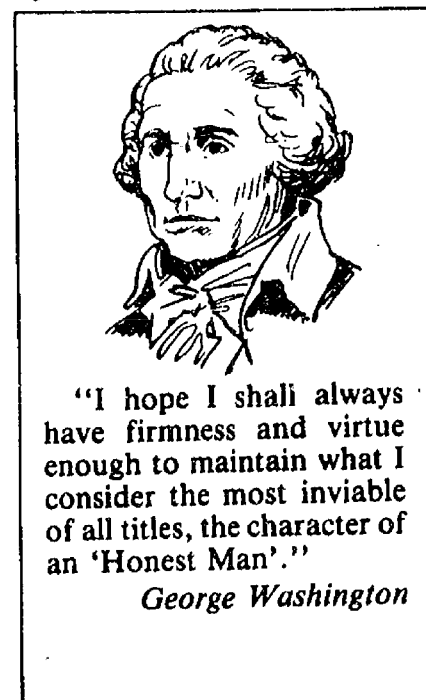

"But America's eventual gain from this war has yet to be decided. We must handle the peace with every bit as much skill and daring and efficiency — and understanding — as we handled the war."

"That's the only way America will really win."

Despite the victory celebration in Washington, the jury's still out on that point.

But it doesn't look nearly as promising as it did in March.

Discovering Skin Cancer Early Helps Chances

By far the most common cause of skin cancer is overexposure to the sun. Fortunately, skin cancer is one of the most curable forms of cancer when it's discovered early. Better still, most skin cancer can be prevented. Usually, the skin itself is not damaged by normal wear and tear because skin cells are dying off and being replaced by fresh cells all the time. But any unusual growth or color change in the skin should be checked by your physician, as should any mole that changes size, shape, or color.

Ninety percent of all skin cancers occur on parts of the body that usually aren't covered by clothing. The face, tips of the ears, hands and forearms have been the usual sites, but in the past 50 years the shoulders, backs and chests of men, and the lower legs of women have become common areas for skin cancer. This is because more and more people are sunbathers who deliberately expose themselves to the sun's ultraviolet radiation.

People who sunburn easily and have fair skin with red or blond hair are most prone to develop skin cancer. It is much less common among people with deep brown or black skin, although even they can develop some forms of skin cancer. There are three major types:

•Basal Cell Carcinoma is the most common kind of skin cancer. It is a slow-growing cancer that usually begins with a small, shiny, pearly bump or nodule on the head, neck, or hand. If left untreated, the original nodule can bleed, crust over, only to open up again. This kind of cancer usually does not become life-threatening, but it can continue to grow, reach underlying tissues, and destroy them.

•Squamous Cell Carcinoma may start as nodules, or as red patches with well-defined outlines. Typically, these develop on the lips, elsewhere on the face or on the tips of the ears. Unlike basal cell carcinoma, squamous cell skin cancers can spread to other parts of the body. Like basal cell carcinoma, they can become quite large if not treated.

•Malignant Melanoma is the least common but the most serious of the major skin cancers. It may originate in or near a mole. Melanomas involve the cells that give the skin its color, and are often a mixture of black or brown, sometimes with red and blue portions. Melanomas continue to grow larger and have irregular borders. Approximately 26,000 new cases are diagnosed every year, and each year about 5,800 patients die of melanoma.

If discovered early enough, melanoma is completely curable, but if it is not treated promptly, it can spread throughout the body.

Even though overexposure to the sun is the leading cause, it isn't necessary to give up the outdoors in order to reduce your chances of developing skin cancer. Just use good sense and simple measures whenever you work or play in the sun — repeated sunburns are particularly risky. Cover up in the sun, wear clothing the sun can not penetrate. Use sunscreens with at least a sun protective factor (SPF) of 15. Try to avoid the sun between the hours of 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. Whatever your skin type, do a monthly self-exam of your skin to note any moles, blemishes, or birthmarks. Check them once a month and if you notice any changes in size, shape, or color, or if a sore does not heal, see your physician without delay.

For more information on skin cancer or any other cancer information please contact the Crawford County Unit of the American Cancer Society.

Pet Care Tip

Mosquitoes, which are especially bad this year, attack pets as well as humans.

Dr. Paul Mesack, of the Grayling Hospital for Animals, recommends that regular mosquito repellent be sprayed on pets. Owners should take care to avoid spraying animals in their faces and eyes.

Dr. Mesack says that some flea sprays also contain mosquito repellents. Check the labels to be sure.

MANUFACTURERS NEWS

THE PEOPLE at Chrysler inform us that a shake or shudder in the front suspension of their 1989 and older Raider, Ram 50 and power ram with four wheel drive may be caused by a problem in the front locking hubs. To isolate the problem, accelerate heavily three or four times to 35-40 m.p.h. in both two and four wheel drive. If a noise is only heard in four wheel drive the front lockouts should be removed and inspected.

Q: The leading causes of boating fatalities in Michigan are: (Check for correct answer at end of article)

- Drinking and speeding.
- Collisions & inexperience.
- Capsizing & falling overboard.

Whether hoisting a spinnaker on Lake Michigan, angling for panfish on Houghton Lake, or drifting quietly down the AuSable River, it is obvious we live in a water wonderland. But a moment of carelessness can turn happiness into tragedy. Each year, people are injured or killed in boating accidents; some that involve alcohol.

Research shows that four hours exposure to noise, vibration, sun, glare, wind, and other motion on the water produces a kind of hypnosis or fatigue that slows reaction time almost as much as if you were legally drunk. Adding alcohol to these factors intensifies their effects which can lead to disaster. Alcohol can also affect your night vision and the ability to distinguish red from green (the color of running lights), both serious problems when boating after dark. Fortunately, there is a growing awareness about the dangers of alcohol and many boaters have found that you don't have to drink to have fun on the water.

Department of Natural Resources (DNR) statistics for 1989 show there were 461 boating accidents in Michigan that left 246 people injured and 35 people dead. The DNR also points out that capsizing (overturning) and falling overboard are the leading causes of boating fatalities in our state. However, wearing a Personal Flotation Device (PFD) or "life jacket" can help reduce the number of deaths by drowning.

A PFD is as important when boating as a safety belt is when riding in a motor vehicle. Even the strongest swimmer is in trouble if the boat rolls and they are knocked unconscious or tossed into cold water. Incidentally, water cooler than 70 degrees is considered cold and can be dangerous.

Have fun on the water, but learn to do it safely by taking a boating course. The Coast Guard Auxiliary, the United States Power Squadron, and DNR all offer good programs.

Make sure your boat has all required safety equipment. Depending on the length and type of boat you operate, you may be required to have several different kinds of equipment including navigation lights, fire extinguishers, PFDs, backfire flame arresters, ventilation devices, bells, whistles, and visual distress signals. Check with the Department of Natural Resources, the Coast Guard Auxiliary, or your local Sheriff's Department to determine what you need for your boat.

Avoid overloading your boat. An overloaded boat reduces the freeboard (the distance from the water line to the top edge of the hull) and increases the potential for capsizing or swamping (filling with water). Many boats have capacity plates that indicate the maximum weight it can carry. Remember, a boat's capacity includes the combined weight of passengers, motor and other equipment on board. The number of seats in a boat is not an accurate measure of its capacity.

Boating offers something for everyone. Be part of the action and join Michigan's more than 700,000 registered boat owners and countless visitors who enjoy the Great Lakes, our more than 11,000 inland lakes, plus thousands of miles of river and streams.

Some watercraft owners have noticed an increase in registration fees. The increases, which have been phased in over the last three years, are the result of Public Act 56 of 1988.

While the Secretary of State collects the fees, which were expected to generate $8.1 million from 1988-91, the revenue will be used to fund programs administered by the Department of Natural Resources. Specifically:

•33.5 percent will be placed in the Michigan Harbor Development Fund for a public/private program to develop new marinas around the state;

•17.5 percent will be placed in Michigan State Waterways Fund for harbor development, maintenance of existing harbors, and grants to local governments to develop harbor marinas; and,

•49 percent will be placed in the Marine Safety Fund for waterway enforcement activities and water safety education programs.

The registration fees have been phased in over three years; all went up in 1989, and a few increased again in 1990 and 1991. Following are the current fees for the estimated 772,373 watercraft in Michigan.

WATERCRAFT CATEGORY	1991
Nonpowered vessels 12 feet or over (except canoes)	$8.25
Motorboats less than 12 feet	$14.00
Motorboats between 12 & 16 feet	$16.75
Motorboats between 16 & less than 21 feet	$41.75
Motorboats between 21 & less than 28 feet	$115.00
Motorboats 28 feet to less than 35 feet	$168.00
Motorboats 35 feet to less than 42 feet	$244.00
Motorboats 42 feet to less than 50 feet	$280.00
Motorboats 50 feet or longer	$448.00
Pontoon vessels regardless of size	$14.00
Motorized canoes regardless of size	$15.00
Vessels licensed for commercial fishing	$45.00
Vessels carrying passengers for hire	$45.00

Vessels that are exempt from registration fees include watercraft owned by a resident of another country, registered in another country but operated temporarily on Michigan waters; vessels owned by the U.S. government for public service lifeboats of registered vessels; all-terrain vehicles not used as a vessel; and, rafts, sailboards, surfboards, or swim floats.

County Museum Opens With New Exhibits

The Crawford County Historical Museum is now open regularly for the season. It will be open every day except Sunday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., and it is hoped to have it open on Sunday if enough volunteers can be found.

Bob Ruddy, curator, has been spending a lot of his time this winter adding new exhibits and changing some old ones around. The fire house is a great addition to the museum with the two old fire engine on exhibit. Memberships are available — family $15 and you can visit often; seniors $5 and you can visit often too. Business memberships are $25 and it is hoped that many Crawford County businesses will support the museum which is a nice tourist attraction.

Our Night Sky By Gary Harland

Hercules is the constellation with the forgotten name. For the 6,000 or so years that people have noticed this group of stars they saw in it a mysterious kneeling figure. It is only in the last couple millennia that it has been called Hercules. Whatever its name was before that is as forgotten as the people who created it.

To those who followed them it has been known as: Unknown Image, He Who Rests On A Knee, Club Bearer, Keen-Eyed One, Leaper, Wrestler, and Dancer. The ancient Phoenician mariners who settled the coastal area north of the Hebrew tribes of Judeah worshipped these stars as their Sea God MELKARTH. The Old Testament Chaldeans around 3500 B.C. saw them as their Sun God IZHDUBAR who slew the ferocious dragon Tiamat. Unlike last month's Ursa Majoris, Hercules has always been seen as a person or god.

Don't Blame Your Age For Poor Hearing.

Chicago, Ill. — A free offer of special interest to those who hear but do not understand words has been announced by Beltone. A non-operating model of the smallest hearing aid Beltone has ever developed will be given absolutely free to anyone requesting it.

It's yours for the asking, so send for it now. It is not a real hearing aid, but it will show you how tiny hearing help can be. The actual aid weighs less than an eighth of an ounce, and it fits completely into the ear canal.

These models are free, so we suggest you write for yours now. Again, there is no cost, and certainly no obligation. Although a hearing aid may not help everyone, more and more people with hearing losses are being helped. For your free sample send your name, address, and phone number today to: Department 20061, Beltone Electronics Corporation, 4201 West Victoria Street, Chicago, Illinois 60646.

Around 500 B.C. the Greeks named it after HERCULES, the immortal strongman, the original Superman. As the story goes, he was another of Jupiter's love-children. Seems the old goat had his eye on beautiful Alcmena, wife of a famous Greek general of the times. The general went off to fight a war somewhere. Jupiter saw his opportunity and, after waiting a short while, transformed himself into the general and gave a knock on the door. "Hi Honey! I'm home on leave!" Nine months later Hercules was born and the general was no wiser. That would have been that if it weren't for Jupiter's tormented wife Juno. Somehow she figured out that Hercules was another result of her two-timing husband and dedicated her life to making Herc's life miserable. She hit him with killer snakes and crabs and even cast a spell of insanity on him. Juno didn't just carry a grudge — she slam-dunked it.

Hercules performed many great deeds of strength and virtue during his life as a mortal. He protected the weak, fought for justice, and, unlike his real dad, was strictly a one-woman man. Put a pair of red long-johns on him and give him a part-time job at a newspaper, and you'd have yourself a comic book star. As one of Jason's Argonauts he helped find the Golden Fleece. But his most memorable feat was the "12 Labors." In atonement for a lot of bad things he did while under Juno's spell of insanity, he slew or captured nine hideous beasts/monsters, snatched a jewel-encrusted belt off the chief of a tribe of giant women, found a bunch of golden apples, and, believe it or not, cleaned out a humongous, filthy, smelly horse stable. Any Superman can handle monsters and giant women but it takes a special kind of guy to clean out a filthy stable. The crimes weren't his fault, but Hercules wasn't a whiner or a wimp. Strictly a no-excuses-no-complaints kind of guy.

He became immortalized in our night sky by a bit of treachery. A sleazy Centaur gave his wife a potion that was supposed to keep him faithful to her forever. A situation developed between Hercules and a lovely slave girl he had recently captured. Deineria feared the worst and smeared the potion all over Herc's clothing. It turned out to be highly corrosive Centaur blood instead of faithfulness lotion and Hercules began to melt. As he screamed in pain for help from his real father, Jupiter, a large, dark cloud flashing lightning and rolling thunder suddenly appeared in the sky and dropped over him. It took him up into the heavens where he was welcomed by the other immortals and, where he can be seen tonight.

The story of Hercules' 12 Labors is an astronomy lesson. Each "labor" represents a constellation in the Zodiac — the string of constellations on the Ecliptic (the arc across the sky that the Sun, Moon, and planets travel). And altogether they show the Sun's passage through the sky over the course of a year. Yes, these stories were very entertaining. Yes, they were a way of passing along what a good Greek citizen should believe and respect. But they were also an excellent way to teach people. The lesson is still going strong after 2,000 years. "Dick and Jane" should live so long!

Within the boundaries set out by the International Astronomical Union are three objects that are particularly enjoyable and easy to find: the double-star Ras Algethi and the globular clusters M13 and M92.

You're probably thinking: "Hey wait a minute! I've been on M13 by Standish and I sure didn't see any globular clusters." The "M" in M13 stands for "Messier" — Charles Messier, the 19th century comet fanatic. How fanatical was he? As his wife lay dying, relatives had to physically pry Charlie off his telescope so he could say his goodbyes. His first words to his dying wife supposedly were: "Let's make this quick. I think I found another comet." So much for romantic French guys.

The list of M/Messier objects is now considered to be the 109 brightest galaxies, clusters, and nebulae. But not to Messier. He had no idea what they were. All he knew was that they looked enough like comets to cause him to waste many nights of observing on false alarms. Comets shift noticeably from night to night with respect to their background stars. These things didn't. But it took a few nights to find out. So as to avoid them in the future he drew up a list. Messier's name has been immortalized not for what he discovered but for what he didn't discover.

Time for another look at the Moon...

Last month I started a tour of the Moon with its largest and darkest features — the Mares or Seas. These are the big, dark blotches easily seen by the naked eye on the Moon's face. They give you an easy way to find other things.

Take for instance the mountains of the Moon. While you won't find any snow-capped peaks (the Moon has no atmosphere let alone moisture) you will find ranges that rival the monster of Nepal and Tibet in the Himalayas.

You are going to need binoculars from here on out. And, unless you are a very mellow fellow, you will need some way to steady your binocs. Trying to look at mountains a quarter of a million miles away as your hands vibrate is a great way to go insane. You could go out and blow big bucks on an expensive tripod with, for a small additional fee, binocular adaptors. Or, you could just scrounge one of those floor waxing things that have a long wooden handle and a pad on a universal joint from your Significant Other. A couple of rubber bands will hold the binocs very nicely. I got that idea from Dr. Bahij Salibi, one of the top neurologists in America in the '60s and '70s who took up amateur astronomy on retirement. Frankly, he could afford to buy the factory that makes the expensive tripods. When I suggested that possibility he just smiled and said something like: "No, no, no! A little bit of imagination is worth more than all the money in the world." Easy for him to say.

The best of the lunar mountain ranges form a ring around Mare Imbrium. Some astronomers speculate that this "sea" was formed by the impact of a large minor-planet billions of years ago. The mountains would have been the geological response to this catastrophic event.

The five ranges making up the Imbrium Ring are the: Apennines, Caucasus, Alps, Carpathian, and Jura Mountains.

APENNINES: form a 450 mile long arc along the south-east edge. It is the lunar lithospheric super-star with some peaks reaching 20,000 feet. That beats anything in our neck of the woods and is competitive with the Himalayas.

CAUCASUS: next range counter-clockwise. Help form Imbrium's east edge separating it from M. Serenitatis. It is about 200 miles long with peaks to 17,400 feet — about what you'd find in Peru's Andes Mountains.

ALPS: form the north-east edge and separate Imbrium from M. Frigoris. Also about 200 miles long but with peaks around 12,000 feet — similar to our Upper Peninsula mountains. Running in a straight-arrow line through the middle of the Alps is a valley that looks for all the world like somebody took a nail and scratched it out. Some say this 110 mile long valley was formed by a low angle-of-entry meteor but most just consider it to be an ordinary crack in the lunar surface.

JURAS: follow a gap of relatively flat terrain after the Alps. They are on Imbrium's north-west edge and are about 150 miles long on the spectacular edge of Sinus Iridium. Peaks are also around 12,000 feet.

CARPATIANS: all the way back around to the southern edge of Imbrium. They are just north of the large crater Copernicus. At 200 miles in length they have the puniest elevations of the bunch — 6,600 feet.

In a telescope the whole thing becomes very entrancing. I've spent hours wandering around the Moon's surface in my imagination. Yes, it is barren and stark. But it is incredibly beautiful with its multitude of intricate textures and subtle shades of gray and white. And each night as the terminator/shadow slips further over, the patterns shift with it making things look entirely different. It turns me into one happy little lunatic.

The Meadows Of Grayling News

By Kathy Gillon, Activity Director

"The weather has been very nice lately, allowing many of our folks to go outdoors and take in the fresh air and pretty scenery. Last Friday several of us went out on the patio and had a good old fashion singalong. Most of our songs were sung without any accompaniment and were sung from memory both the words and melody. Everyone was served ice cream sandwiches and a cold drink as refreshments.

On Tuesday afternoon, residents were delighted to welcome and listen to a country style gospel musician/singer, Ron Relletier. Mr. Relletier traveled from St. Helen to spend some time with our residents singing some old time favorite gospel songs with his guitar. Mr. Relletier brought his own equipment, complete with speakers, so everyone could hear his melodious voice as he crooned his way into the hearts of our residents. This was Ron's first time here at the Meadows but he promised to come back.

Many residents turned out for our monthly birthday party. Cake was enjoyed by all.

We would like to welcome Clarence Davis to our facility and we are glad that Carolyn Harris could return so quickly from the hospital. We will miss Raymond Schuster who has moved to another facility.

Clean-Up 126th Army Band To Be In Parade

type, lack of polarized minerals and isolation due to overlying cover."

In a recent report ESI stated that on-site levels show a similar range of values and that the question of why these high values of lead exist has not yet been determined. Young said ESI was continuing to examine these samples to see if other heavy metal contaminants are present.

Young said that all contamination will have to be eliminated before the sale to King Ventures will take place.

"The contamination has to be cleaned up," he said. "Anyone who buys that property is going to be demanding the same thing Burger King is, to receive a clean piece of property."

He said whether the land can change hands once the pump and treat remedial action plan is in place is up to the DNR and the Michigan State Police Fire Marshall.

To ensure that contamination does not occur at the new road commission complex, Young said the new underground fuel tanks are equipped with a leak detection system that conforms with current state of Michigan and Environmental Protection Agency regulations. All waste oil is stored in a separate tank and is disposed of by a licensed industrial waste contractor under the supervision of the DNR.

Radio Club To Race Across North America

On Saturday, June 22, a complete working amateur radio field station will be set up at the intermediate school grounds on Pioneer Hill near Roscommon. Over 27 hours, Crawford-Roscommon Amateur Radio Club members will race to contact thousands of other amateur stations set up across North America.

All are invited to visit the working amateur radio stations and learn about the role "ham radio" plays right here in the two counties.

Amateur radio operators are licensed by the Federal Communications Commission.

For more information about this exciting community event, come to the field day exercise June 22 and 23.

One of the highlights of the Milltown Parade in July will be the 126th Army Band, which will be coming to take part. The 126th Army Band is an exceptional group who are very much in demand and the parade committee feels that it is a great privilege to have them as part of the annual parade.

Another addition to the parade this year will be the children who may dress up or decorate their bikes, wagons, and buggies and take part in the parade. Prizes will be given in the two categories for two age groups, 5 to 8, and 9 to 12-year-olds.

The Milltown Parade is sponsored by the Grayling Promotional Association.

Doodles From The Tall Timber

By Wendell Hoover Hartwick Pines Interpreter

The recently completed Big Wheels rolled out of the shop one day last week headed for the Logging Camp Museum. I would have preferred them to have been moved by a team of horses, but even behind the tractor they were an impressive sight. They are up off the ground slightly and will remain on static display until August, when we put them to use during Black Iron Days. The Assistant Manager and I are anxious to see how well they work, as we and some others put a lot of effort into duplicating century old work.

A reminder to all those interested. There will be a Friends group meeting at 7:30 p.m. on June 20, 1991, at the Park Headquarters. We will provide an update of the status of several projects going on within the park, so come to lend your thoughts and help for your park.

Resource Review

By Bruce Patrick DNR Officer

New regulations relating to the possession of road killed animals were recently put into effect. The new rules allow for the continued possession of deer and bear, under permit, as well as other game birds and animals during the open hunting or trapping season for each species.

For example, during the open season for hunting ruffed grouse, a licensed hunter may possess a road killed grouse, but it must be included in that hunter's bag limit. Likewise, a road killed raccoon may be possessed if the hunting or trapping season is open and the possessor has a valid fur harvester's license.

There are exceptions to these more relaxed guidelines. Road killed moose, elk, migratory birds (ducks, geese, woodcock, etc.), non-game birds (hawks, owls, songbirds) and endangered species may not be possessed except under special state and/or federal permit for scientific and educational purposes. Road killed English (House) sparrows, starlings, feral pigeons, and non-game mammals (porcupines, red squirrels, etc.) may be possessed at any time.

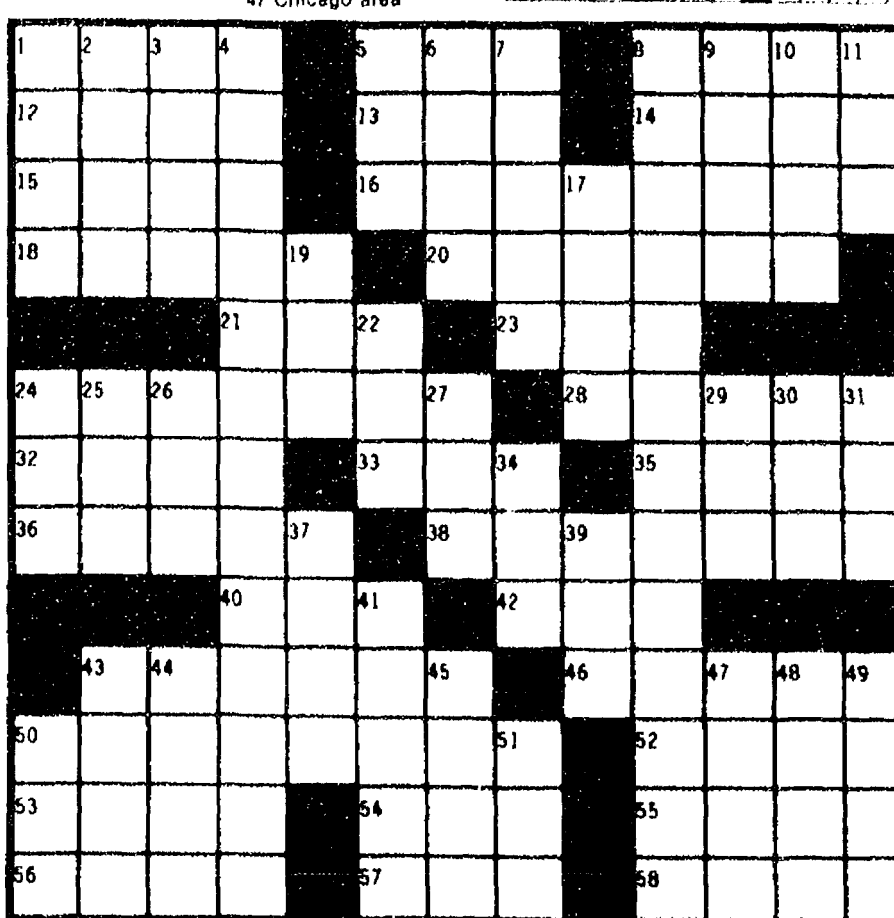

Remember, the season for the game bird or game animal must be open and the possessor must have a valid license for the taking the animal and it must be included in the daily/seasonal bag limit of the possessor.

Verse or Worse

By Joe Murphy

Point Proven

Those folks so critical of the National Guard
Who always claimed they did nothing right
Seem to have found the answer
To why the guard must train to fight

They have found the guard is trained and ready
To answer their country's call
They showed their loyalty to flag and country
And they went prepared to give their all

They proved well all that training is needed
For they must be prepared to go
To any of the four corners of the world
Be it in desert sands or snow

They left their homes and hearth side
And were soon in a foreign land
Ready to fight for the cause of freedom
And break the grip of a tyrant's hand

They are now all home again, thank God
Back working at their job the same as you and I
They have proven hours of training
Trained them to do their job and not to die

So when you hear their guns at night
Or maybe hear the choppers flying too
Remember they are out there getting the training
For the job they may be called upon to do

Say a thank you to these people
Workin' hard in freedom's name
I hope their critics have learned a lesson
That their training is not a game

Global Technocratic Control

Samuel Francis in an article entitled "Principalities & Powers" printed in the June 1991 issue of CHRONICLES, A Magazine of American Culture, did a beautiful job of revealing just who is in control of our world system today. From a conservative, secular perspective, he painted a picture of the merging "New World Order." While rejoicing that we won the war with Iraq, he reminded us that it was not "the American Republic, the American nation, or even a Pax Americana" which "really triumphed on the banks of the Euphrates." Instead, Francis identified the winners as "... the imperium of a deracinated new class of global technocrats who know little about peace or America and who despise the real American and Western civilization as much as they scorn the Moslem and Arabic cultures that they claimed to be liberating."

Francis said, "The goal of the elite is the extirpation of the roots of cultural distinctiveness such as family, community, sexuality, ethnicity, and religious identity and their replacement by a cosmopolitan ethic of 'humankind' administered by the elite's own bureaucratic colossi." These elites of "Principalities & Powers" are identified in every field including economic, cultural, political, educational, and religious. Our column last week showed the emerging "church morality" on sex, which is perverted morality at least, and gross immorality at the worst.

Francis attributed Zbigniew Brzezinski with this insight in his 1970 book, Between Two Ages. Francis said Brzezinski's book "is a kind of blueprint for the New World Order." Brzezinski wrote: "Today, we are again witnessing the emergence of transnational elites, but now they are composed of international businessmen, scholars, professional men, and public officials. The ties of these new elites cut across national boundaries, their perspectives are not confined by national traditions, and their interests are more functional than national... The creation of the global information grid, facilitating almost continuous intellectual interaction and the pooling of knowledge, will further enhance the present trend toward international professional elites and toward the emergence of a common scientific language... This, however, could create a dangerous gap between them and the politically activated masses, whose 'nativism'—exploited by a more nationalist political leaders—could work against the 'cosmopolitan' elites."

God warned us centuries ago about this conflict, "For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world against spiritual wickedness in high places." (Eph. 6:12). Whose side are you on?

Church Directory Face Forward With GOD

It appears that this young equestrian would benefit from additional riding lessons! Who ever heard of riding a horse backward?? Someone should advise her to face forward if she expects to reach her destination.

Yet, how many of us make the same mistake as we journey through our lives... looking backward instead of forward. We may lose sight of our goals, if we are blinded by the fear of repetition of past hurts and regrets.

Face the future without fear, trusting in God. Psalms 37:23-24 assures us saying, "the steps of a man are established by the Lord;... when he falls, he shall not be hurled headlong because the Lord is the One who holds his hand."

Make your decision to face forward with trust, not backward with fear, as you praise God this week in your chosen house of worship.

VACCINATIONS

Vaccinations, sometimes called "baby shots," are one of the most successful medical interventions ever developed. In our lifetime, horrible diseases like diphtheria, tetanus, polio, and smallpox have become almost nonexistent. Hundreds of millions of vaccines have been injected and swallowed by people worldwide to accomplish this. Because of this, some people are able to "get away" with not being vaccinated, taking the chance that they will avoid what have become rare diseases. This is foolish. Even today, when vaccines are missed, skipped or withheld, people have suffered terrible illnesses and have even died. Innocent children still die in this country from preventable diseases.

With all our experience in vaccination, it has become obvious that there are sometimes adverse or undesirable reactions. Most of these involve fever, pain, swelling at the injection site and irritability. Although these are not common, they are not rare. They can be prevented, or at least diminished by the use of products like Tylenol/Panadol just before the injection and every four hours for three to four doses after the shot.

Unfortunately, there are definite, severe reactions that can occur. They are rare, but sometime devastating. The best warning is a history of a previous severe reaction. Severe reactions include high fever (more than 105°), seizures, persistent crying, collapse, shock, and brain fever (encephalopathy). After oral polio a permanent paralysis can occur, but there is no way to predict this and a new vaccine is being offered for the later booster does that doesn't have this problem. Unfortunately this safer polio vaccine doesn't work well in babies at two and four months of age.

Please inform your doctor of any past problems with vaccinations, or of any that occur in the future. Doctors are required by law to report them, and the health and well-being of yourself or child may depend on it.

Anytime an injection is given there is a chance of reactions. This is why you are asked to wait in the office for 20 minutes after any shot. Any shot, even antibiotics, can cause a local reaction, such as a sterile abscess. Great care is taken to give the shots correctly to minimize this, but it still can happen.

Other important things to remember are allergy to eggs or to neomycin (an antibiotic found in many ointments for skin infections). The MMR (measles, mumps, rubella shot) can cause problems in these cases. It is now recommended that all children at age 12 years receive a booster MMR. Persons born prior to 1957 do not need any doses of MMR.

There has been a lot of "noise" lately about the harmful effects of vaccinations and the "benefits" of withholding baby shots. This is a little bit like a drunk driver who insists that he's alive because he wasn't wearing a seatbelt when he rolled the car! Seatbelts, vaccinations, and many things in life have certain risks, but when the benefits are clearly more important, the decision to make is obvious. Doctors support seatbelts, vaccinations, and good health. Which do you support?

Cornell Offers Bottom-Line Savings, Best Service For Commercial Coverage

Area businesses can profit from the recent upgrading of Cornell Insurance Agency's computer system.

Every business has its own special insurance needs and Cornell's state-of-the-art independent insurance service can find the best insurance carrier and policy for each business.

Not only can this result in considerable savings to a business, but it also means giving the best service and value. The upgrading of the computer system gives Cornell Insurance agents quick access to ratings, replacement cost factors, and other pertinent information. Insurance questions that used to take hours to answer can now be answered in minutes.

"Our agents now have the ability to display a customer's file on the computer screen as they are talking to them," points out Cornell Insurance president Paul Thomson. "If a customer has lost a certificate of insurance, we can verify their coverage, print one very quickly, and get it out to them."

Important information such as replacement costs can be kept up to date with the computer system. Before Cornell went with computers, agents had to use an applied factor to figure replacement costs. Each insurance carrier sent out small pamphlets containing these factors on an annual basis. With the computer system, these factors are received monthly and in greater detail. Cornell agents are now also able to communicate directly with the different insurance carriers, resulting in speedier service to their customers.

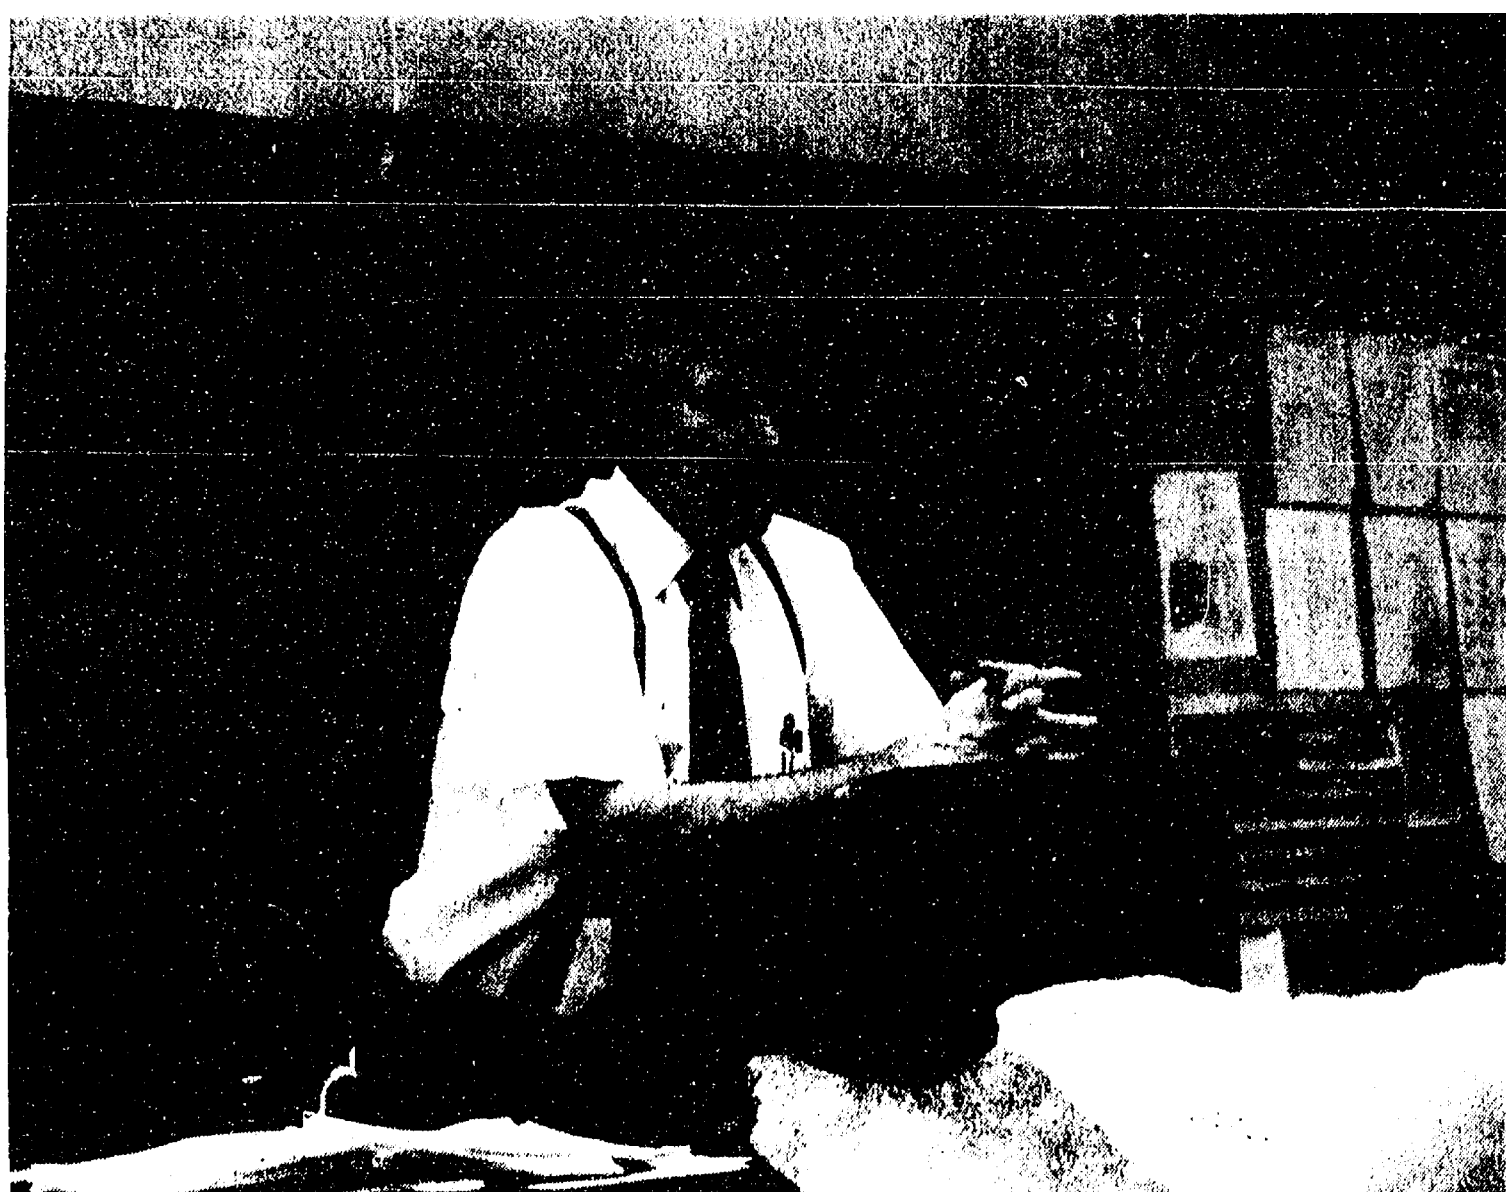

Cornell's staff includes George Stancil, vice-president; Ron Thomson and Doranda Thompson, customer service representative; Jim Ritter, life and health insurance; Joyce Fox, claims; Ann Hanson, accounting, and Linda Northrop, computer supervisor. All work at the Cornell Insurance Agency located at the corner of the I-75 Business Loop and M-72 East.

"We do know our business here," said Thomson. "It seems like someone is always going to a seminar or school to learn more. We want to stay current and be a state-of-the-art independent insurance service."

Everything would have been fine but John Smith decided he should help an old lady who was being mugged. Subsequently, he ends up in the hospital being questioned by a police officer who wants to know why he has two addresses. Now John has to keep the police officer and his two wives from finding out about each other. Come watch the frivolity that ensues his attempts.
